The Eiffel Tower:

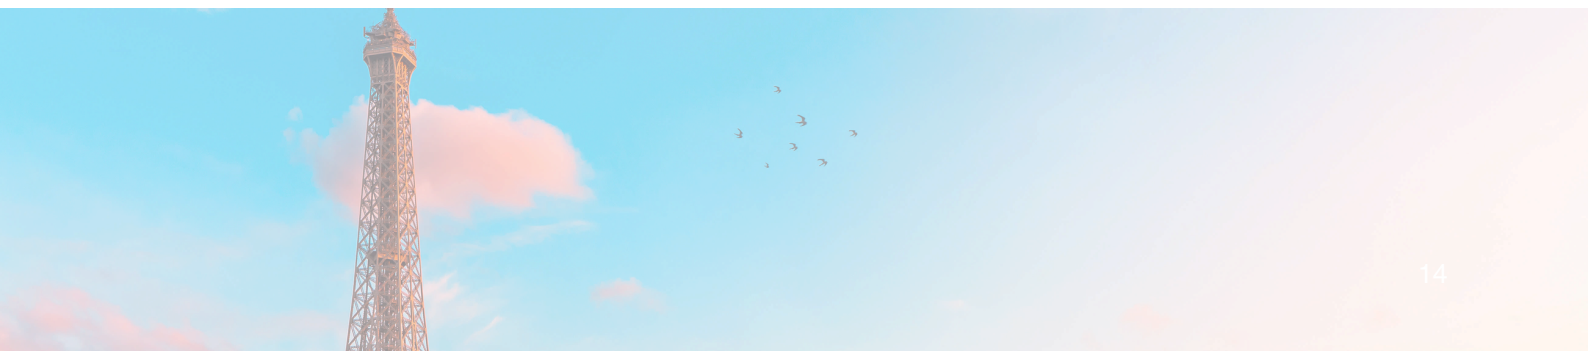

Locally nicknamed "La dame de fer" (French for "Iron Lady"), it was constructed from 1887 to 1889 as the entrance to the 1889 World's Fair and was initially criticised by some of France's leading artists and intellectuals for its design, but it has become a global cultural icon of France and one of the most recognisable structures in the world.

Musée du Louvre:

The Louvre Museum is the world's largest art museum and a historic monument in Paris, France, and is best known for being the home of the Mona Lisa. Approximately 38,000 objects from prehistory to the 21st century are exhibited over an area of 72,735 square meters (782,910 square feet).

Arc de Triomphe :

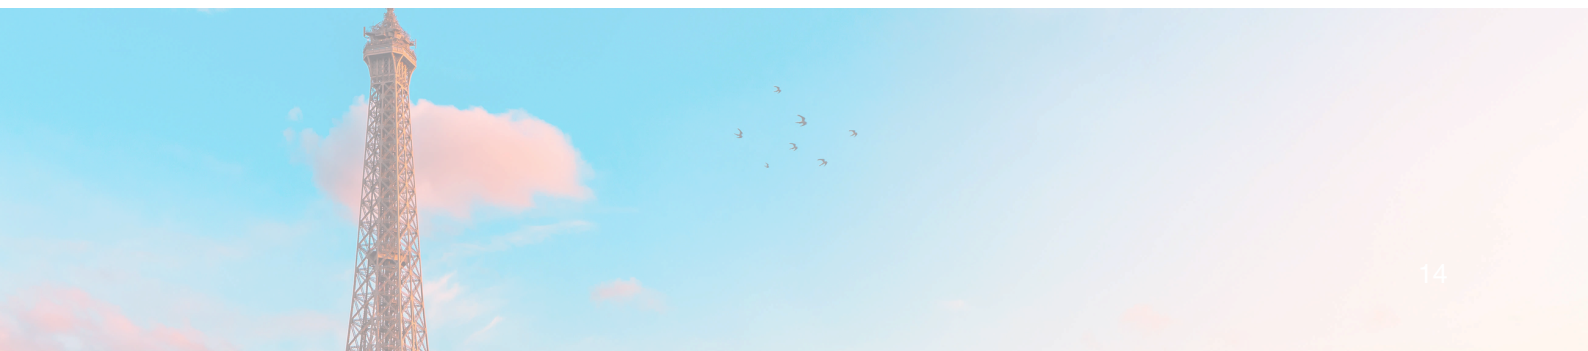

The Arc de Triomphe de l'Étoile is one of the most famous monuments in Paris, France, standing at the western end of the Champs-Élysées at the centre of Place Charles de Gaulle, formerly named Place de l'Étoile, the étoile or "star" of the junction formed by its twelve radiating avenues.

Place Concorde

The 3,300-year-old Egyptian obelisk of Luxor (thirteenth century B.C.) was transported to France in 1836, offered by Egypt in recognition of the role of the Frenchman Champollion, who was the first to translate the hieroglyphics. King Louis-Philippe I placed it in the center of the square when it was designed by the architect Hittorff.

A background image of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, France, illuminated at night. The tower is a golden-yellow color and stands against a dark blue night sky. The image is partially obscured by a large, light-colored circular graphic that serves as a backdrop for the text.
